Serving as CEO and Lead Instructor at the Center for Aggression Management, John Byrnes has provided training to individuals from approximately 500 organizations throughout the US.

AGGRESSION MANAGEMENT SKILLS THROUGH TRAINING & TECHNOLOGY

About Us

John D. Byrnes founded the Center for Aggression Management in 1993 to provide organizations with Aggression Management skills through training. The Center for Aggression Management has spent the past 24 years developing the means to identify, measure and manage the precursors to all forms of aggressive behavior in others and ourselves.

The responses to our Aggression Management training programs consistently confirm:

- Other methods of attempting to prevent violence either do not work or are reactive rather than preventative
- The aggression management techniques we offer are viewed as new information that will dramatically alter the effectiveness of threat assessment, security and other personnel attending the training
- The systematic approach to implementing aggression management through the Critical Aggression Prevention System we call CAPS is sorely needed in today's organizations

The Center for Aggression Management has been honored to serve clients from most areas of government, education, and private enterprise:

- US Army, Special Operations Command, Terrorism Division
- NASA
- National School Boards Association
- Orlando International Airport
- Disney Development and Walt Disney Imagineering
- State Farm Insurance
- Lockheed Martin
- Penn State University
- University of California
- Cox Communications

“It has become very clear that having a system in place that allows us to look at the totality of circumstances, regarding a student behavior in an objective way, we are now able to truly assist and/or intervene in a timely, appropriate manner, with a focus on a preventative result.”

TARGET AND IDENTIFY

COGNITIVE VS. PRIMAL AGGRESSION

Critical Aggression Prevention System

The Center for Aggression Management developed the Primal and Cognitive Aggression Continua. All of the body language, behavior and communication indicators offer a reliable and definable method of describing “aggressive behavior”. This identifies the precursors to bullying, harassment, abuse and violence in order to provide the opportunity to prevent such incidents.

The center uses a mobile-based software product called the Meter of Emerging Aggression (MEA). Because the MEA uses no mental health, culture, gender, education, age, or sexual orientation in its aggression assessment, it does not conflict with HIPAA or Privacy regulations.

COGNITIVE AGGRESSION

Stage 9 - Willing to do whatever it takes, including taking their own life to meet their objective.

Stage 8 - Plans to attack victim without self-sacrifice.

Stage 7 - Complicit and in conspiracy with Stage 8 & 9.

CRISIS PHASE

Stage 6 - Issues an ultimatum. Proclaims the victim as evil.

Stage 5 - Deliberately damages reputation of another by exposing them publicly as an enemy.

Stage 4 - Secretly creates distrust of their victim within community. Sniper behavior.

Stage 3 - Abandons communication as a tool.

Stage 2 - Chooses a side and fixates on one point of view. Loses trust of others.

Stage 1 - Hardens points of view, begins deception, creates distance, lacks empathy.

PRIMAL AGGRESSION

Stage 9 - Panics or becomes enraged. Exhibits the body language of an attacker. Fight, flight or freeze phenomena.

Stage 8 - Complete loss of judgment. Actions and words usually fail to make sense.

Stage 7 - Loses verbal control and words generally do not make sense.

CRISIS PHASE

Stage 6 - Perceives self as a victim. Demonstrates intimidation and threats.

Stage 5 - Belligerent, yelling, sweating, unusual swearing.

Stage 4 - Aggressor refuses to comply. Depersonalizes victim.

Stage 3 - Hyper vigilant, questions authority.

Stage 2 - Deterioration of fine motor skills.

Stage 1 - Scattered and disjointed thinking.
